A VOCABULARY OF GEOGRAPHICAL TERMS

WHICH ARE NOT IDENTICAL IN THE ENGLISH AND SPANISH LANGUAGES.

NOTE.—Adjectives derived from proper names, geographical and other, are entered in the body of the dictionary and therefore not repeated here. Thus: Abisinio, a, Abyssinian; Cesariano, na, Cæsarian, belonging to Julius Cæsar.

N. B.—Words derived from the names of countries, towns, etc., may be taken as substantives or adjectives; as, American, Americano, which means a native of America, or things relating to America. Therefore, and in order to avoid useless repetition, only the English word corresponding to the Spanish, or the periphrasis native of, is annexed to it. The scholar may easily find out whether the noun is taken substantively or adjectively. He is also to keep in mind that this kind of nouns, if they terminate in o, change it into a for the feminine, and add a when they end in a consonant; as, Italiano, Italiana; Andaluz, Andaluza; Inglés, Inglesa, etc.

PREFACIO.

Si bien el presente volumen está basado sobre la Parte Segunda del Diccionario de Velázquez, la revisión hecha ha sido tan completa que resulta en realidad una obra nueva. No sólo se han suprimido centenares de vocablos anticuados y enmendado el error de insertar provincialismos sin expresar que lo eran, sino que al modernizar el contenido de esta Parte Segunda se le han añadido unas once mil voces nuevas y gran número de modismos ingleses, con abundancia de ejemplos ilustrativos. Objeto muy principal de esta revisión ha sido el de aumentar el carácter práctico de la obra, y al efecto se ha enriquecido notablemente su vocabulario comercial y científico. Los nombres propios se hallarán en el Apéndice, al paso que los adjetivos que de ellos se derivan quedan incluidos en el texto del Diccionario.

El sistema de pronunciación constituye una mejora especial y valiosa de esta edición. El adoptado por Velázquez es sin duda el más exacto de todos los seguidos desde entonces en otros diccionarios bilingües; pero lo supera indiscutiblemente el aceptado en este volumen, que es el sistema propuesto por la Asociación Filológica Americana, y que cuenta también, según creemos, con la aprobación de la Sociedad Filológica de Inglaterra. Da la pronunciación exacta y es fácil de comprender y retener en la memoria, á la vez que se adapta mejor que otro alguno de cuantos lo han precedido al uso de los países europeos. Se han hecho centenares de correcciones en la pronunciación, y cuantos consulten esta obra pueden tener seguridad absoluta de su exactitud en este punto esencialísimo. Los principios del sistema se hallarán claramente expuestos en la Introducción.

Por medio de signos adecuados y abreviaturas se indican también al lector las voces anticuadas, desusadas, de uso familiar, de germanía, y las puramente locales ó provinciales, mejora de que carecen todas las otras obras de igual extensión y alcance.

Las definiciones de muchos nombres y en particular de los verbos se han completado con gran copia de ejemplos utilísimos. Las modificaciones que el uso de los adverbios y preposiciones aporta con frecuencia al sentido de los verbos ingleses se hallarán anotadas con especial cuidado en toda esta Segunda Parte.

La construcción ya próxima del Canal del Istmo servirá para estrechar las relaciones entre estos dos idiomas, que figuran hoy entre los más importantes, necesarios y usados en todo el mundo. Nuestro deseo más ferviente es que este volumen contribuya también á tan útil como valioso resultado.

Y para concluir, séanos permitido expresar nuestro vivo agradecimiento á los Editores por sus felices esfuerzos y por la excelencia de las condiciones tipográficas de esta obra.

Edward Gray.

Las letras que componen el alfabeto inglés son veintiseis, á saber:—

a, b, c, d, e, f, g, h, i, j, k, l, m, n, o, p, q, r, s, t, u, v, w, x, y, z.

Las vocales son a, e, i, o, u, y algunas veces w, y. Las consonantes son todas las demás.

[Para los sonidos de las letras inglesas, véase la "Introducción" que sigue á esta Sinopsis.]

PARTES DE LA ORACIÓN.

Las partes de la oración son diez, á saber: The Article (el Artículo), the Noun ó Substantive (el Nombre ó Sustantivo), the Adjective (el Adjetivo), the Pronoun (el Pronombre), the Verb (el Verbo), the Participle (el Participio), the Adverb (el Adverbio), the Preposition (la Preposición), the Conjunction (la Conjunción), y the Interjection (la Interjección).

DE LOS ARTÍCULOS.

Los Artículos son dos, a ó an (un, una), y the (el, los; la, las; lo).

A se usa delante de consonante: como, a man (un hombre); y an delante de vocal ó h muda: como, an age (un siglo), an hour (una hora).

The se usa delante de nombres en ambos números: como, The man (el hombre), the men (los hombres).

A se llama artículo indefinido, porque no se refiere á ninguna persona ó cosa en particular: como, a presidente (un presidente). The se llama artículo definido, porque se refiere siempre á una persona ó cosa en particular: como, "The President of the United States" (El Presidente de los Estados Unidos).

El artículo a se pone delante de los nombres de peso, medida, número; los de oficios, empleos, dignidades, y en las admiraciones, aunque no se usa en español: como, "Tea is sold at a dollar a pound" (El te se vende á peso la libra). "He has a sister who is a widow, and a brother who is a captain" (Él tiene una hermana viuda, y un hermano que es capitán). "He is an American" (Él es americano). "What a beautiful woman!" (¡Qué hermosa mujer!)

El artículo definido castellano, delante de un nombre común tomado en toda la extensión de su significado, no se traduce en inglés: v. g., "Man is mortal" (El hombre es mortal); pero si el sustantivo sólo designa una especie, aunque tomado en un sentido general, se expresa: v. g., "The negro is our brother" (El negro es nuestro hermano).

Cuando un nombre propio va precedido del de la dignidad, cargo, etc., no admite el artículo en inglés: v. g., "General Washington" (El general Washington), "Judge Field" (El juez Field). El artículo se omite también á menudo en inglés cuando se repite delante de varios sustantivos seguidos: v. g., "The father, mother, and children are sick" (El padre, la madre y los niños están enfermos). Tampoco se traduce cuando precede á los nombres Señor ó Señora (Mr. ó Mrs.), seguidos de un nombre propio: v. g., "Have you seen Mr. or Mrs. N.?" (¿Ha visto V. al Señor ó á la Señora N.?).

DEL NOMBRE Ó SUSTANTIVO.

El Nombre se divide en común y propio.

Nombre común es el que conviene á muchas personas ó cosas: como, city (ciudad), man (hombre).

Nombre propio es el que conviene á una sola cosa ó persona: como, London (Londres), Peter (Pedro).

Del Género.

Los géneros son tres: masculino, femenino y neutro.

Todo nombre de varón, ó animal macho, es masculino; todo nombre de mujer, ó animal hembra, es femenino; todos los nombres de cosas inanimadas son del género neutro.

Hay nombres que distinguen el género por una palabra diferente: v. g., brother (hermano), sister (hermana); otros lo expresan por medio de la terminación: v. g., lion (león), lioness (leona); y otros que lo distinguen por medio de las palabras male ó female: como, "A male child" (un niño), "A female child" (una niña); man ó maid: como, "A man-servant" (un criado), "a maid-servant" (una criada); cock ó hen: como, "A cock sparrow" (un gorrión) "a hen sparrow" (la hembra del gorrión); he ó she: como, "A he-bear" (un oso), "a she-bear" (una osa).

Del Número.

Los Números de los nombres son dos, singular y plural.

El plural se forma generalmente añadiendo una s al singular: v. g., guide (guía), guides (guías); book (libro), books (libros).

Los nombres acabados en ch (cuando suena como en castellano), ó en ss, x ú o, precedida de consonante, forman el plural añadiendo es al singular: v. g., church (iglesia), churches (iglesias); kiss (beso), kisses (besos); fox (zorra), foxes (zorras); hero (héroe), heroes (héroes); pero si la ch suena como k, añaden solamente s: v. g., monarch (monarca), monarchs (monarcas).

Los terminados en y, precedida de una vocal, siguen la regla general: v. g., day (día), days (días); pero si la precede una consonante, la mudan en i y añaden es: v. g., fly (mosca), flies (moscas); lady (señora), ladies (señoras).

Los nombres que acaban en f ó fe mudan estas letras en v y añaden es: v. g., leaf (hoja), leaves (hojas); life (vida), lives (vidas). Se exceptúan chief (jefe), dwarf (enano), handkerchief (pañuelo de mano), etc., y también muff (manguito), que forman el plural añadiendo s.

Hay algunos nombres cuyos plurales son irregulares: v. g., man (hombre), men (hombres); foot (pie), feet (pies), etc.; child (hijo), children (hijos). Estos nombres corresponden generalmente á palabras semejantes del alemán.

De los Casos de los Nombres.

Los casos son tres: The Nominative (el Nominativo), the Possessive ó Genitive (el Posesivo ó Genitivo), y the Objective ó Accusative (el Objetivo ó Acusativo).

El Nominativo y el Objetivo se distinguen sólo por su colocación en la frase: v. g., "The father loves the son" (El padre ama al hijo); "The son loves the father" (El hijo ama al padre).

El Posesivo denota posesión, y se forma invirtiendo el orden y poniendo primero en inglés el nombre que es último en español, después del cual se pone un apóstrofo y la letra s: v. g., "My father's house" (La casa de mi padre); "The boy's hat" (El sombrero del muchacho). Cuando los plurales terminan en s, el Posesivo se forma añadiendo solamente el apóstrofo: como, "My brothers' horse" (El caballo de mis hermanos). Viniendo más de dos sustantivos seguidos, el apóstrofo y la s se ponen á cada uno de ellos: v. g., "The captain's son's servant's horse" (El caballo del criado del hijo del capitán). En tal caso sería mejor cambiar la construcción. Con el apóstrofo y la s ('s) se indica también el lugar, sitio ó casa en donde se ha hecho alguna cosa: v. g., "He supped last night at your sister's" (house, sobreentendido), (Él cenó anoche en casa de la hermana de Vd.).

DE LOS ADJETIVOS.

Los Adjetivos en inglés no admiten variación de género ni número: v. g., "A prudent man" (un hombre prudente), "prudent men" (hombres prudentes); "a prudent woman" (una mujer prudente), "prudent women" (mujeres prudentes); y se colocan generalmente antes del sustantivo: v. g., "He wishes warm water" (Él quiere agua caliente).

La sola variación que admiten es la de los grados de comparación. Estos son Positivo, Comparativo y Superlativo.

El comparativo de aumento se forma por medio del adverbio more (más), seguido de than (que): v. g., wise (sabio); "more wise than he" (más sabio que él). También se forma añadiendo una r á los monosílabos que acaban en e, ó er á los que terminan en otra letra: v. g., wiser (más sabio); black (negro), blacker ó more black (más negro).

El comparativo de inferioridad ó diminución se forma por medio del adverbio less (menos), ó less than (menos de ó que): v. g., "He is less rich than she" (Él es menos rico que ella).

El comparativo de igualdad con los adjetivos se expresa con los adverbios as . . . . (tan . . . .), as (como); ó not less . . . . (no menos . . . .) than (que): v. g., "He is as generous as she" (Él es tan generoso como ella); "She is not less generous than he" (Ella no es menos generosa que él).

El comparativo de igualdad con los sustantivos se expresa por as ó so much (tanto, tanta), en singular; y por as many (tantos, tantas), en plural, y el como siguiente por as: v. g., "She has as much gold as silver" (Ella tiene tanto oro como plata); "He has as many dogs as horses" (Él tiene tantos perros como caballos).

El Superlativo se forma con los adverbios very (muy), most ó least, y también añadiendo st á los acabados en e, ó est á los terminados en otras letras.

Cuando el positivo acaba en y la muda en i, y á esta añade las letras er para el comparativo, y est para el superlativo: v. g., dry (seco), drier ó more dry (más seco), driest (sequísimo), very dry (muy seco).

What es un relativo compuesto, que comprende tanto el relativo simple como el antecedente: como, "This is what I wanted; es decir, the thing which I wanted" (esto es lo que yo quería).

PRONOMBRES INTERROGATIVOS.

Los Pronombres Interrogativos son who (quién), whose (de quién), whom (á quién); which (qué), y what (qué). Se usan en las interrogaciones: como, "Who said that?" (¿ quién dijo eso?) "Whose is this book?" (¿de quién es este libro?) "Whom did you see?" (¿á quién vió Vd.?) "Which book do you wish?" (¿ qué libro quiere Vd.?) "What did he do?" (¿ qué hizo él?)

PRONOMBRES ADJETIVOS.

Hay cuatro clases de Pronombres Adjetivos:

1ª. Los posesivos.—My (mi, mis); thy (tu, tus); his (su, sus, de él); her (su, sus, de ella); our (nuestro, nuestra; nuestros, nuestras); your (su, sus; de Vd., de VV.); their (su, sus; de ellos, de ellas); its (su, sus); own (propio).

2ª. Los distributivos.—Each (cada); every (todo, toda); either (uno ú otro); neither (ni uno ni otro).

3ª. Los demostrativos.—This (este, esta, esto); that (ese, esa, eso; aquel, aquella, aquello); con sus plurales—these (estos, estas); those (esos, esas, etc.).

4ª. Los indefinidos.—None (ninguno, etc.); any (alguno, etc.); all (todos, etc.); such (tal, etc.); whole (todo, etc.); some (alguno, etc.); both (ambos); one (uno); other (otro, etc.); another (otro, etc.). Los tres últimos se declinan como nombres.

OBSERVACIÓN.—His y her son pronombres posesivos, cuando preceden inmediatamente al nombre; pero cuando vienen solos, his es el caso posesivo del pronombre personal he, y her el objetivo de she.

DEL VERBO.

Los Verbos son de tres clases: Transitivos ó Activos, Pasivos, é Intransitivos ó Neutros.

Verbo activo ó transitivo es aquel cuya acción recae sobre algún objeto: v. gr., "James strikes the table" (Jaime golpea la mesa).

Verbo pasivo es el que representa una acción como sufrida ó recibida por el sujeto: v. gr., "The table was struck" (la mesa fué golpeada).

Verbo neutro ó intransitivo es el que expresa la existencia ó el estado de los seres, ó una acción que no pasa del sujeto: v. gr., "I am here" (yo estoy aquí); "he sleeps" (él duerme); "I run" (yo corro).

Divídese el verbo, por razón de su forma, en Regular, Irregular y Defectivo.

Verbo regular es el que forma su imperfecto y pretérito de indicativo (Indicative Imperfect) y su participio pasivo (Past Participle) agregando d ó ed al presente (Present); como, love (amo); loved (amaba, amé); loved (amado); hoist (alzar), hoisted (alzaba, alcé; alzado).

Verbo irregular es el que se separa de la regla establecida en el párrafo anterior; como, write (escribo); wrote (escribía, escribí); written (escrito).

Llámase verbo defectivo el que carece de alguno de sus tiempos y personas; á esta clase pertenecen la mayor parte de los auxiliares y todos los impersonales.

De los Modos y Tiempos del Verbo.

Los verbos tienen cuatro modos: á saber, Infinitivo, Indicativo, Imperativo y Subjuntivo ó Potencial.

Los tiempos del verbo son seis: á saber, the present (el Presente); the past (el Imperfecto y Pretérito); the perfect (el Perfecto Próximo); the pluperfect (el Pluscuamperfecto); the future (el Futuro); y the future perfect (el Futuro Anterior).

Formación de los Tiempos del Verbo.

El Presente de Infinitivo es como la raíz de que nacen y se forman los demás tiempos y personas, y se distingue por la preposición to: v. g., to admire (admirar); to abandon (abandonar). Cuando el presente de infinitivo se usa solo, debe estar precedido siempre de dicha preposición.

El Gerundio, que en inglés es Participio Presente, se forma añadiendo la terminación ing al presente del infinitivo, el cual, en este caso, omite la preposición to, y también la e, si acaba en esta letra: v. g., to admire (admirar), admir*ing* (admirando); to abandon (abandonar), abandon*ing* (abandonando).

El Participio Pasivo de los verbos regulares se forma añadiendo una d al infinitivo de los que terminan en e, y ed á los que acaban en otra letra: v. g., to admire (admirar), admir*ed* (admirado); to abandon (abandonar), abandon*ed* (abandonado). Si el infinitivo acaba en y precedida de una vocal, añade ed: v. g., to pray (suplicar), pray*ed* (suplicado); pero si es una consonante la que precede á la y, la convierte en i y añade ed: v. g., to satisf*y* (satisfacer), satisf*ied* (satisfecho).

Presente de Indicativo.—La primera persona singular, y la primera, segunda y tercera persona plural del Presente de Indicativo son lo mismo que el presente de infinitivo, sin la preposición to; pero en su lugar deben expresar el pronombre correspondiente: v. g., to admire (admirar); I admire, we admire, you admire, they admire (yo admiro, nosotros admiramos, etc.). Se exceptúa de esta regla el verbo to be (ser).

La segunda persona singular del Presente de Indicativo se forma añadiendo st al presente de infinitivo de los acabados en e, ó est á los que no terminan en esta letra: v. g., to admire (admirar), thou admire*st* (tú admiras); to abandon (abandonar), thou abandon*est* (tú abandonas). Si el infinitivo acaba en y, precedida de vocal, se añade est; y si de consonante, muda la y en i, y añade est: v. g., to pray (suplicar), thou pray*est* (suplicas); to cry (gritar), thou cri*est* (gritas).

La tercera persona singular del Presente de Indicativo se forma añadiendo una s (antiguamente eth) al presente de infinitivo: v. g., to love (amar), he love*s* (él ama); to abandon (abandonar), he abandon*s* (él abandona). Excepciones.—Cuando el infinitivo acaba en o, ch, sh, ss, th, x ó z, se añade es: v. g., to go (ir), he go*es* (él va); to beseech (suplicar), he beseech*es* (él suplica), etc. Si el verbo acaba en y precedida de una consonante, la convierte en i y añade es; pero si viene después de vocal, añade s solamente: v. g., to reply (replicar), he repli*es* (él replica); to pay (pagar), he pay*s* (él paga).

El Imperfecto y Pretérito (past tense) de indicativo de los verbos regulares es lo mismo que su participio pasivo: v. g., to promise (prometer), promis*ed* (prometido), I promis*ed* (yo prometía ó prometí): excepto la segunda persona singular, que añade st: v. g., thou promised*st* (tú prometiste). Si el infinitivo acaba en y precedida de consonante, la muda en i y añade ed; pero si no, la retiene y añade ed: v. g., to reply (replicar), I repl*ied* (yo replicaba ó repliqué); to delay (dilatar), I delay*ed* (yo dilataba ó dilaté).

El Futuro, cuando significa simplemente una acción por venir, se forma por medio del auxiliar shall prefijado al infinitivo, sin la partícula to, en las primeras personas, y will en las demás. Pero cuando indica promesa, deseo vehemente, mando ó amenaza, se expresa por medio de will en las primeras personas, y de shall en las demás, exceptuando las segundas singulares, que se expresan por wilt y shalt: v. g., "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbour" (No levantarás falso testimonio contra tu prójimo).

El Presente del Modo Subjuntivo ó Potencial se forma por medio de los auxiliares may ó can, ó de las conjunciones, if, though ó whether, prefijados al infinitivo sin la partícula to: "I may write" (puede ser que yo escriba, ó yo escriba). "Whether it prove true or not" (Sea que el caso resulte verdadero ó no). "Though he slay me, yet will I trust in him" (Aun cuando me matare, en él esperaré).

El Imperfecto del Subjuntivo ó Potencial se forma por medio de los auxiliares might, could, would ó should, según su respectiva significación, prefijados al infinitivo sin la partícula to: v. g., to sell (vender), "I would sell" (yo querría vender ó yo vendería).

Los Tiempos Compuestos se forman, como en castellano, por medio del auxiliar to have (haber), seguido del participio pasivo del verbo principal: v. g., I have armed (he armado); I had armed (yo había ó hube armado); I shall have armed (yo habré armado); I may have armed (yo haya armado); I might, could, would, ó should have armed (yo hubiera, habría, ó hubiese armado).

EL VERBO TO DO.

Frases interrogativas, negativas y enérgicas se forman generalmente por medio del auxiliar To Do, en el presente de indicativo y en el imperfecto y pretérito del mismo. Ejemplos: He buys (él compra) ; he does not buy (él no compra) ; does he buy? (¿compra él?) ; does he not buy? (¿no compra él?) ; he bought (él compró) ; he did not buy (él no compró) ; did he buy? (¿compró él?) ; did he not buy? (¿no compró él?). Cuando To Do se usa enérgicamente, equivale á una afirmación.

VERBOS IRREGULARES.

Son Verbos Irregulares en inglés los que no forman su participio pasivo ni su imperfecto ó pretérito con la adición de las letras d ó ed: v. g., to see (ver), I saw (yo veía ó ví), I have seen (he visto). Todas estas irregularidades están incluídas en este Diccionario, en sus respectivos lugares ; pero para facilitar á los principiantes el hallarlas, se pone la siguiente lista de todas ellas en inglés solamente, para no hacer muy difusa esta Sinopsis. Los que están marcados con una R indican que pueden formarse de la manera regular: v. g., to work (trabajar); he worked ó wrought (él trabajó); he has worked ó wrought (él ha trabajado); y en tales casos se prefiere la forma regular, por regla general.

DEL ADVERBIO.

Los Adverbios de modo ó calidad, que en castellano se forman añadiendo la terminación mente al adjetivo, se expresan en inglés por medio de la sílaba ly añadida al mismo: v. g., wise (sabio), wise*ly* (sabia*mente*); dear (caro); dear*ly* (cara*mente*).

Los Adverbios admiten los grados de comparación, y los expresan con las mismas letras que los adjetivos: v. g., near (cerca), *near*er (más cerca), *the near*est (lo más cerca).

En inglés no se puede usar más de una negación; y así, No quiero nada se traduce, "I want nothing."

DE LA PREPOSICIÓN.

Hay gran número de verbos en inglés que van acompañados de ciertas preposiciones, las cuales son como parte de ellos, entran en su significación y la hacen variar, á manera de los verbos separables en alemán: v. g., To bring, Traer, llevar. To bring about, Poner por obra, efectuar. To bring forth, Dar de sí, producir, parir; dar á luz; exhibir. To bring in, Introducir, hacer entrar; alegar, declarar; producir, dejar utilidad ó ganancia. To bring over, Transportar, hacer atravesar; atraer, ganar á alguno á su partido. To bring out, Sacar, extraer, hacer salir; poner en evidencia; mostrar; descubrir; publicar. To bring up, Subir, hacer subir; presentar; servir á la mesa; educar, enseñar. Estas modificaciones van indicadas con mucho cuidado en el texto de este diccionario.

DE LA CONJUNCIÓN.

Las Conjunciones se dividen en inglés, como en español, en copulativas y disyuntivas.

Copulativas son las que enlazan simplemente unas palabras con otras, y las oraciones entre sí; v. g., "Peter and John will speak" (Pedro y Juan hablarán); "Wisdom and ignorance are opposites" (Sabiduría é ignorancia son cosas opuestas).

Disyuntivas son las que significan división ó alternativa entre las cosas: v. g., "I speak neither English nor German" (Yo no hablo ni inglés ni alemán).

DE LA INTERJECCIÓN Ó EXCLAMACIÓN.

La Interjección es una palabra que sirve para expresar los varios afectos del ánimo, ó para llamar la atención: como, "Oh, what a beautiful creature!" (¡Oh, qué hermosa criatura!) "See!" (¡Mira!)

OBSERVACIONES SOBRE ALGUNAS REGLAS DE LA SINTAXIS.

Cuando los poseedores de una misma cosa son dos ó más, el apóstrofo y la s se ponen sólo después del último: v. g., "The father and son's house" (La casa del padre y del hijo); "John and Henry's book" (El libro de Juan y de Enrique).

Dos ó más sustantivos singulares, regidos por las conjunciones either—or, neither—nor, rigen al verbo, al adjetivo y al pronombre en singular: v. g., "Either Peter or John is guilty" (ó Pedro ó Juan son culpados); "Neither time nor distance is able to diminish our friendship" (ni el tiempo ni la distancia son capaces de disminuir nuestra amistad).

La preposición to, que designa el infinitivo, se omite frecuentemente después de los verbos to bid, dare, need, make, see, hear, let, y los auxiliares may, can, will, shall, must, y sus pretéritos: v. g., "I dare say" (Me atrevo á decir).

Los verbos que significan esperar, mandar, desear, etc., rigen al otro verbo en presente de infinitivo con preferencia al perfecto del mismo: v. g., "I found him better than I expected to find him," y no "to have found him" (Le hallé mejor de lo que yo esperaba hallarle, y no haberle hallado).

El participio presente inglés (gerundio español) se traduce en el presente de infinitivo con la misma preposición, excepto cuando esta es by, pues en tal caso se omite, y el participio se traduce por el gerundio: v. g., "The taking from another what is his, without his permission, is called stealing" (El tomar de otro lo que es suyo, sin su permiso, se llama robar). En este caso el participio es un nombre. "John was sent to prepare the way by preaching repentance" (Juan fué enviado para preparar el camino predicando la penitencia).

Algunas conjunciones requieren el indicativo y otras el subjuntivo; en general, cuando el sentido es contingente ó dudoso se debe usar el último: v. g., "If I were to write, he would not do it" (Si yo le escribiera, él no lo haría); "He will not be pardoned unless he repent" (El no será perdonado, á menos que se arrepienta).

INTRODUCCIÓN SOBRE

LA PRONUNCIACIÓN DE LA LENGUA INGLESA.

PARA hablar el inglés no basta saber pronunciar las letras del alfabeto, pues no hay quizás lengua alguna que presente sonidos tan varios y excepciones tan numerosas á la regla general; de modo que sólo por medio de una lectura asidua y constante, bajo la dirección de un maestro ó practicando con ingleses ó norteamericanos inteligentes, se puede conseguir una pronunciación más ó menos perfecta.

Hay también otra irregularidad importante en la ortografía del inglés, la de que una misma letra se pronuncia de diferentes maneras, con sonidos enteramente distintos: v. g., a suena á veces como e, e como i, o como u, etc. Así en inglés, lo! (he aquí), se pronuncia precisamente como el pronombre lo en español; pero do (hacer), se pronuncia du; to (á), tu, etc. Esta irregularidad se extiende á numerosísimas palabras, al paso que en español sólo sucede lo mismo con la y, que cuando es conjunción se pronuncia como i, v. g., Europa y América, y se pronuncia como consonante cuando hiere á una vocal, como en *y*erro, *y*ugo.

Estas excepciones ó irregularidades son tan abundantes en inglés que casi puede decirse que las letras de ese idioma de ninguna manera representan los sonidos del lenguaje. Una cosa es aprender á escribir una palabra, y otra enteramente diferente el saber pronunciarla después de escrita. Tan grande es esta dificultad que así los americanos como los ingleses están obligados á emplear Diccionarios de Pronunciación con su clave correspondiente; esto es, diccionarios en que las palabras están impresas tal cual deben escribirse, y á continuación las mismas palabras con ciertos signos, que muestran cómo deben pronunciarse. Estos Diccionarios de Pronunciación no los hay en castellano, porque no se necesitan.

La diferencia entre la manera de escribir y la de pronunciar las palabras en inglés se debe en parte á que la lengua inglesa se ha formado de la mezcla de gran número de diferentes lenguas; y en parte á los grandes cambios que han ocurrido en la manera de pronunciar muchas palabras durante muchos siglos, mientras que el modo de escribirlas no ha cambiado en proporción; pero principalmente á causa de haber adoptado el alfabeto romano para representar el inglés, que tiene muchos más sonidos que aquél ó el latino, y aun más que el castellano, y por lo tanto no puede representarlos el alfabeto romano.

Una vez adoptado el método de escribir una lengua hablada por muchos millones de personas, queda tan completamente establecido que, por más absurdos que contenga, es sumamente difícil reformarlo enteramente ó hacer en él algunas de las más necesarias correcciones. Pero la lengua inglesa continúa escribiéndose de una manera tan poco conforme con su pronunciación, que la explicación de ésta se hace necesaria aun para aquellos que la hablan como lengua materna; de aquí provienen, como queda dicho, los Diccionarios de Pronunciación para uso de los ingleses.

Recientemente se ha compuesto un alfabeto para servir de clave á la pronunciación de la lengua inglesa, tan superior á todos los sistemas precedentes, que el autor se ha visto obligado á adoptarlo en esta parte de su Diccionario. Por su medio y el de las explicaciones que le acompañan se obvian en gran manera las dificultades que ofrece la pronunciación inglesa. Llámase el Alfabeto Científico (preparado y difundido por La Asociación Filológica Americana y empleado en el "Standard Dictionary"). Contiene treinta y dos letras en vez de veintiseis, que es el número del alfabeto común inglés; porque realmente hay treinta y dos distintos sonidos en dicha lengua. Seis de estas letras son dobles ó dígrafas, á saber: ch, dh, ng, sh, th, zh; y tres de los sonidos están provistos de nuevas letras, ɑ, e, u. En el Alfabeto Científico hay siempre un solo sonido para un solo signo ó letra, y un solo signo para un solo sonido. El que quiera aprender á hablar por él deberá principiar procurando entender perfectamente dicho Alfabeto Científico, estudiándolo bien, á fin de hablar el idioma inglés de manera que pueda distinguir el sonido que cada una de sus letras representa, desentendiéndose enteramente al principio del abecedario común. Conseguido esto, se hallará en estado de aprender la pronunciación de cada palabra, por cuanto cada una está impresa á continuación fonotípicamente en la segunda columna, esto es, precisamente como debe pronunciarse. Á medida que el lector se acostumbre á ver las palabras de la primera columna, ora estén impresas ó escritas, sabrá cómo hacer uso de ellas según el alfabeto antiguo, generalmente usado, y es como sigue:

El alfabeto inglés consta de veintiseis letras cuyas formas y nombres son:

A a	se pronuncia	e	N n	se pronuncia	en
B b	"	bi	O o	"	o
C c	"	si	P p	"	pi
D d	"	di	Q q	"	quiú

Como estas letras no pueden representar propiamente todos los sonidos de la lengua inglesa, se ha adoptado el siguiente:—

NOTAS.

ɑ. Este carácter representa el sonido de la a en español, particularmente cuando lleva el acento tónico: v. g., papɑ. Es el sonido correcto de la a antes de la l muda, seguida de f, m, ó v: v. g., cɑlf, bɑlm, cɑlve. Tiene también el mismo sonido antes de gh (cuando estas dos letras equivalen á una f), y antes de nch, nd, nt, pero en estos casos se escribe au: v. g., ɑunt, lɑugh, lɑunch.

ɑ̣ ó ɑ variant; semejante á la a castellana, pero pronunciada breve y de golpe.

A, a. Este sonido ocurre comúnmente en una sílaba acentuada que termina en consonante; es breve, y se asemeja al sonido de la i francesa en crin: v. g., h*a*t, f*a*t. Cuando es larga, ā, va delante de una r, como en fāre; también se halla en lugar de ea, en b*ea*r, de ai en b*ai*r, e en th*e*re, ei en th*ei*r, y es equivalente á la è francesa. ạ, representa el mismo sonido, pero algo confuso, con cierta tendencia hacia la eu francesa ó ʊ de este alfabeto.

B, b. Esta letra se pronuncia como en castellano; pero cuidando de comprimir fuertemente los labios, á fin de no confundirla con la v, y abrirlos sin extenderlos, para que no resulte una p. Los que no tengan oportunidad de oirla de un natural del país, podrán aprovechar mucho haciendo que un natural de Burgos, Toledo ó Madrid pronuncie despacio en su presencia, *b*a*b*ador, *b*e*b*er, *b*iri*b*ís, *b*o*b*o, *b*ur*b*uja, procurando después imitarlos, teniendo siempre un poco comprimidos los labios antes de pronunciar la vocal.

Por este medio se percibirá fácilmente que la diferencia entre los sonidos de la b y de la p consiste en que salga de la garganta el aliento al pronunciar la primera, deteniéndole entre los labios, y en la segunda se despide sólo de los labios con alguna más fuerza, extendiéndolo muy ligeramente: v. g., en *p*a*p*á, *p*e*p*ena, *p*i*p*í, *p*o*p*ote, *p*u*p*ila.

C, c, como la c castellana antes de la a ó la o.

Ch, ch, como en castellano.

D, d. Esta letra representa en ambas lenguas el sonido parlante correspondiente al susurrante que representa la t, el cual se forma colocando la punta de la lengua contra el cielo de la boca cerca de los dientes superiores y apartándola de ellos de golpe; pero al pronunciar la d es necesario hacerlo con suavidad, porque si se esfuerza mucho, se convierte en el sonido de la t. El sonido de que aquí se habla es el que tiene la d en *d*ama, *d*eja, *d*ime, *d*ote, *d*uro, teniendo mucho cuidado de evitar el provincialismo de pronunciarla como z, como t, ó como th, en inglés: v. g., verda*t*, verda*z*, en vez de verda*d*.

Dh, dh, como d en Madri*d*, se*d*, to*d*o, uste*d*, ó de*d*o en algunas provincias, la *dh*al (ذ) arábiga ó la delta griega moderna: v. g., *th*y (dhɑi), *th*at (dhat); está siempre escrita con th en la ortografía común.

E, e. Esta vocal es breve como en pen (inglés), piel (castellano); larga (ê), como en fe ó pain y fate (inglés). La e obscura (ẹ), tiene una pronunciación familiar que se aproxima á la u en r*u*n. ẹr acentuada, como en h*er*, ó ir en st*ir*, se pronuncia comúnmente como ur en b*ur*n (ó el diptongo francés eu); sin embargo, tiene una pronunciación formal más cerrada y más hacia adelante en la boca, parecida á la e en merry. ê larga se representa en la ortografía común por:

1. ea en br*ea*k, ei en v*ei*n, eigh en *eigh*t [êt], ey en th*ey*.

2. a antes de una vocal, como en aorist; antes de consonantes y de la e muda: v. g., f*a*te, str*a*nge; antes de mb, nci, ss: v. g., ca*mb*ric [kêm], a*nci*ent [ên], ba*ss* [bês].

3. ai en l*ai*d, aigh en str*aigh*t, ao en g*ao*l [jêl], au en g*au*ge [gêj], ay en d*ay*. ệ, variante, es un sonido intermedio entre ê y e, ó como ê pronunciada breve y de golpe.

G, g. Esta letra en el sistema fonético se pronuncia siempre como la g en *g*ato, *g*ota, *g*ula.

H, h. El sonido de esta letra es gutural, y semejante al de la j española, aunque no tan fuerte como ésta. H, versalita, es el sonido fuerte de la j española, ó de la ch alemana, como en ach!

I, i. Esta vocal breve se parece á la i española, pero pronunciada breve y de golpe.

I larga (ī), suena como en español, cuando está acentuada: v. g., v*i*da, (ó inglés), mach*i*ne [mɑ-shīn']. Se representa en la ortografía común por: 1. i (capr*i*ce). 2. ie: v. g., f*ie*ld, gr*ie*f. 3. ei: v. g., conc*ei*ve, c*ei*l, *ei*ther [ī'-dhẹr]. 4. e, en b*e*, h*e*; ee, en b*ee*, f*ee*t, etc.; ea, en b*ea*st [bīst], s*ea*, etc.; æ, ay, œ: v. g., C*æ*sar, qu*ay*, Ph*œ*bus. 5. Antes de la r: v. g., h*e*re, b*ie*r, car*ee*r. ị, variante, se pronuncia breve y de golpe.

J, j. Equivalente á dch, dy; tiene el mismo sonido que la jîm arábiga or la gi italiana en giorno. Los que entiendan francés podrán obtener este sonido prefijando una d á la j en las voces *j*e, *j*amais, pronunciando los dos sonidos muy juntos.

K, L, M, N, no requieren observación.

ṅ, sin embargo, es un sonido nasal tomado del francés, y retiene su sonido en dicha lengua: v. g., boṅ mot.

Ng, ng, letra dígrafa, representa un sonido común á las lenguas inglesa y alemana; se oye, casi perfecto, en el castellano bla*n*co, te*ng*o; en inglés, si*ng*, wro*ng*, si*nging*, wro*nging*. La letra n, acentuada, tiene el mismo sonido cuando va antes de la g, como en a*n*ger [ang'-gẹr], E*n*glish [ing'-glish]; ó antes de los sonidos de k: v. g., si*n*k [singk ó siṇk], a*n*xious [angk'-shus], ha*n*dkerchief [hang'-ker-chif]. Se expresa generalmente en este volumen por medio de ng y por el signo ṇ.

O, o, como en castellano. ō larga se halla además de su propio carácter en au y eau (tomadas del francés): v. g., m*au*ve, b*eau*; ew, en s*ew* [sō], etc.; oa, como en f*oa*l [fōl]; oe, en t*oe* [tō]; ou, en s*ou*l [sōl]; ow, en r*ow* [rō]; ough en th*ough*, etc.

Ə, ə. No hay en castellano sonido que corresponda exactamente al de esta vocal, por cuanto participa de a y o; pero de una manera tan confusa que no puede distinguirse cuál de ellas predomina. Este sonido se forma manteniendo el aliento dentro de la boca, y arrojándolo contra el cielo de ella. Para aprenderlo bien, es necesario oir pronunciar por un americano ó un inglés la voz all (todo), cual fonéticamente se escribe, ə̄l. La o en p*o*r se pronuncia de un modo muy parecido al sonido de esta vocal. La ə breve, como en *o*bstante (inglés n*o*t), se halla representada por ɑ, en wa, wha, qua, antes de un sonido consonante final: v. g., *wa*s, *wha*t [wəz, hwət]; por ou, en h*ou*gh [hək]; por ow, en kn*ow*ledge [nəl'-ej]; por oh, en J*oh*n; por ach, en y*ach*t [yət]. La ə̄ larga, como en act*o*r (*o*rb, s*o*rt), se halla además de o (su forma propia).

impresa ou, como en c*ou*gh, *ou*ght.

impresa oa, como en br*oa*d.

impresa au, como en g*au*dy; aw, en l*aw*.

impresa a antes de l, ll, lc, ld, lm, ls: v. g., app*a*ll, *a*ll, *a*lmost, f*a*lcon, b*a*ld, *a*lmanac, b*a*lsam, etc.

impresa a, en wa, wha, como en w*a*r, wh*a*rf, etc.; así como en qu*a*rt [cwə̄rt], etc. əi, como en h*oy*.

P, Q, R, S, no requieren observación.

Sh, sh, letra dígrafa, que tiene el sonido de la ch francesa ó la shín arábiga, se representa en la ortografía común, además de su propia forma, por:

1. Si, ssi, s(e), sc(i), antes de una vocal no acentuada: v. g., *s*ugar, pen*si*on, pa*ssi*on, nau*se*ate, con*sci*ence.

2. ti, antes de una vocal no acentuada, como en par*ti*al [pār′-shɑl], etc.

3. c(i), ce, che, antes de una vocal no acentuada, como en an*ci*ent, o*ce*an, lun*che*on, etc.

4. ch, después de l y n finales (en la Gran Bretaña), y en muchas palabras extranjeras, principalmente tomadas del francés: v. g., *ch*ampagne, *ch*arade; capu*ch*in, ma*ch*ine, etc.

T, t. Además de su propia forma, la representa th, como en *th*yme, *Th*omas, etc.; y d, ed, finales en los tiempos pretéritos y los participios después de una letra sorda: v. g., faced [fêst], asked [ɑskt].

Th, th, letra dígrafa, corresponde á la z castellana, como en *z*apa.

U, u, ū. La u breve tiene casi el mismo sonido que el de la u en t*u*mba, pronunciada breve y de golpe. Se halla (1) en f*u*ll, b*u*lrush, etc.; (2) en la sílaba -ful: v. g., cupf*u*l; (3) después de la s, cuando equivale á sh: v. g., cen*su*re, *su*gar; (4) antes de sh: bu*sh*, cu*sh*ion, etc.; (5) en wo: v. g., *wo*man, *wo*lf; oul, en w*oul*d, c*oul*d; en oo, como en b*oo*k, g*oo*d, etc.; (6) en sílabas breves tomadas del latín y otros idiomas extranjeros.

La ū larga suena como la u castellana acentuada, como en t*u*bo. Se halla: 1, comúnmente después de r, l, ó j: v. g., r*u*de [rūd], etc.; 2, impresa ew, como en cr*ew*, l*ew*d, rh*eu*m; 3, impresa ui, como en cr*ui*se, fr*ui*t, etc.; 4, impresa ou, como en y*ou*, thr*ou*gh, t*ou*r, etc.; 5, impresa oo, como en f*oo*d, w*oo*ing [wū′-ing], etc.; 6, en sílabas acentuadas de palabras procedentes de idiomas extranjeros. Hay también la u de diptongo, que se llama ordinariamente la u larga: v. g., m*u*sic [miū′-zic].

U, υ, ū. La υ breve, como en b*u*t (pero) tiene un sonido que debería oirse de labios de un hijo del país; es análogo al de la eu francesa, pronunciada breve y de golpe. Se usa en vez de la o antes de n, ne, ng, m, mb, mp, me, ve, th, dh, y z: v. g., s*o*n, d*o*ne, t*o*ngue, am*o*ng, c*o*mfort; c*o*mpass, c*o*me, ab*o*ve, etc.; br*o*ther, etc., d*o*zen, etc. También, en vez de oo, en bl*oo*d; de oe en d*oe*s; ou, en d*ou*ble, pi*ou*s; io, en -s*io*n, -t*io*n [shυn]; v. g., nat*io*n, etc. La ū larga, como en b*u*rn, se oye en ur: v. g., h*u*rl, etc.; y en la o en w*o*rk [wūrk], etc. Corresponde al diptongo alemán oe y al francés eu: v. g., douc*eu*r, böse, *oe*l.

V, v. Los españoles deben cuidar mucho de la pronunciación de esta letra para no confundirla, como frecuentemente sucede, con la b. Esta se pronuncia comprimiendo los labios, y aquella tocando con el labio inferior los dientes superiores, como si se fuera á expresar fe, y forma un par con la f, siendo la v la parlante y la f la susurrante de un par.

W, w. Esta letra se pronuncia precisamente como en castellano la u antes de a: v. g., g*u*ardia, ó como la o en Joaquin, *O*ajaca; pero pronunciando ambos sonidos con tal rapidez que no formen más que una sílaba, es decir, que la o se junte de tal manera con la vocal siguiente que no se distinga. Este sonido es realmente el de una consonante brevísima, y se forma comprimiendo un poco los labios para impedir que el aliento salga libremente. Los españoles no observan esto, que, no obstante, es muy perceptible para un inglés: es decir, que aunque los españoles pronuncian sin dificultad y correctamente esta letra en su lengua, de conformidad con lo que se dice arriba, y que esto lo hacen diariamente, piensan que solamente pronuncian una u ó una o, mientras que el inglés percibe una ligera distinción entre el sonido de estos elementos, cuando se hallan delante de otra vocal, v. g., en g*u*apo, *O*ajaca, y el sonido de los mismos elementos estando solos ó antes de una consonante, como u, v. g., en C*u*ba, é indica esa distinción escribiendo w en lugar de u en el primer caso.

X, x, equivale á cs, como en español.

Y, y, en este alfabeto es siempre consonante.

Z, z. Este carácter representa también el sonido parlante correspondiente á la s consonante, susurrante ó semi-muda, por cuanto las dos forman un par. No hay en castellano sonido que le cuadre, pero puede aplicársele el de la z francesa en *z*èle, ó el de la zai arábiga.

Zh, zh, letra dígrafa ó doble; tiene el sonido de la j francesa, como en *j*amais. Es el sonido de si en la desinencia -*si*on después de una vocal acentuada: v. g., occa*si*on, vi*si*on; de la s en su, como en compo*su*re [cōm-pō′-zhur], plea*su*re [plezh′-yur], etc.

La división de las sílabas en este diccionario se ha efectuado con el objeto de representar las divisiones de la pronunciación.

Este sistema de pronunciación, sancionado por autoridades de tanto peso como las Asociaciones Filológicas Americana é Inglesa, merece plena aprobación y la mejor acogida por su exactitud y claridad.

Al principio parece extraño, como lo son en general todas las cosas nuevas; pero estas aparentes dificultades desaparecen luego que se experimentan los excelentes efectos que produce, dando un signo á cada sonido y distinguiendo claramente las diferencias de éstos, medio por el cual se hacen más fáciles y correctas la pronunciación y la escritura.

El alfabeto fonético no ofrece dificultad que no sea fácilmente superable, con un poco de estudio y aplicación, como se verá por la recapitulación del mismo contenida en la siguiente Guía.

GUÍA PARA EL USO DE LA CLAVE QUE VA AL PIE DE LAS PÁGINAS.

ī *i*da; ê h*é*; ā *a*la; ɵ p*o*r; ō *o*ro; u *u*no.—i *i*dea; e *e*sté; ɑ *a*sí; o *o*só; υ *o*pa; ū como en l*eu*r (Fr.).—ɑi *ai*re; ɵi v*oy*; ɑu *au*la;

iu vi*u*da; y *y*unta; w g*u*apo; h *j*aco; ch *ch*ico; j *y*ema; th *z*apa; dh *d*e*d*o; z *z*èle (Fr.); sh *ch*ez (Fr.); zh *J*ean; ng sa*n*gre.

1. El lector que quiera aprovecharse de la ventaja y facilidad que proporciona el alfabeto fonético, y por su medio adquirir la verdadera pronunciación de la lengua inglesa, deberá advertir que la clave que se halla al pie de cada página indica los sonidos que las vocales y diptongos tienen en inglés, correspondientes exactamente á las vocales y diptongos que en las voces españolas están impresos en letra cursiva, á saber:—

ī, *i*da; ê, h*é*; ā, *a*la; ō, *o*ro; u, *u*no; y, *y*unta; w, g*u*apo;—ɑi, *ai*re; ɑu, *au*la; ɵi, v*oy*.

2. Las siguientes consonantes de la clave corresponden también exactamente á las mismas letras en español y francés, indicadas con caracteres cursivos en las voces siguientes:—

h, *j*aco; ch, *ch*ico; th, *z*apa; ŋ, ng, sa*n*gre; z, *z*èle (Fr.); sh, *ch*ez (Fr.); zh, *J*ean (Fr.).

3. Las letras cursivas en las voces siguientes de la misma clave no dan exactamente el mismo sonido que sus correspondientes tienen en inglés (véanse las Notas precedentes en sus lugares respectivos); pero son las que en castellano se aproximan más á los sonidos ingleses: y si el lector se aplica con atención á compararlos, adquirirá una pronunciación muy poco diferente de la de un inglés ó americano de nacimiento, y bastante exacta para ser entendido:—

ɵ, p*o*r; i, *i*dea; e, *e*sté; ɑ, *a*sí; o, *o*só; υ, *o*pa; u, f*u*mó; oi, v*oy*; iu, vi*u*da.

4. Las observaciones hechas en el número 3 deben aplicarse también á las consonantes j y d; v. g., en *y*ema, *d*e*d*o. Véanse las notas precedentes.

5. Las demás letras consonantes que no se hallen en la clave al pie de cada página (v. g., p, b, t, d, c, g, f, v, s, r, l, m, n), corresponden exactamente en su sonido á las castellanas.

A NEW DICTIONARY OF THE SPANISH AND ENGLISH LANGUAGES.

ENGLISH AND SPANISH—INGLÉS Y ESPAÑOL.

En la Introducción se verá explicado el sistema de pronunciación.

A [ê], primera letra del alfabeto y una de las cinco vocales, tiene cuatro sonidos distintos en inglés; el primero como la e en castellano, aunque prolongada de modo que se parece algo al diptongo ei, como en fate, face, waste, etc.; el segundo como la á larga en castellano, en far; el tercero participa del sonido de o y a indistinto, cual se oye en fall, wall; y el cuarto es como una a breve en fat. Tiene también dos sonidos indistintos, como queda explicado en la introducción, donde se indican los respectivos signos para todos estos sonidos.

A [ê, y cuando no tiene acento, ɑ], artículo indefinido singular, significa un ó una en castellano, v. g. A man, un hombre; pero cuando precede á una palabra que empieza con vocal ó h no aspirada, se convierte en an; v. g. An ox, un buey; an hour, una hora. Muchas veces se pospone á palabras que en castellano la preceden; v. g. Such a man, Un tal hombre.

A es algunas veces nombre substantivo. como, A capital A, Una A mayúscula.

A [ɑ], prep., se halla á veces delante del participio activo, para denotar la acción de un verbo; v. g. A hunting Chloe went, Cloe fué á cazar. A muchas veces denota proporción, como, Six thousand a year, Seis mil libras esterlinas, ó seis mil pesos, al año ó cada año. A se usa también en lugar de in; v. g. To be abed, estar en cama.

A se emplea en las abreviaturas: v. g. A. B., Bachelor of Arts, Bachiller en Artes. A. M., Master of Artes, Maestro en Artes. A. D., Anno Domini, El año del Señor. A. M., Ante Meridian, (Antes del mediodía) En ó por la mañana.
